

AQA A-LEVEL BUSINESS

About The Course

A-level Business introduces you to what you need to know about working in business. The main focus of the course is on helping you to become a good decision maker and be aware of how decisions can impact key business areas such as marketing, operations, finance and human resources. Lots of real world examples are used to help you connect with the theory.

Assessment

A-Level assessment consists of three two hour written exams at the end of the two year course. Each exam will be worth a third of the A-level and all the papers will draw on material from the whole course. The papers will feature a range of question styles including multiple choice, short answer, essay, data response and case study. Students are issued with a course companion to support their study throughout the two year course.

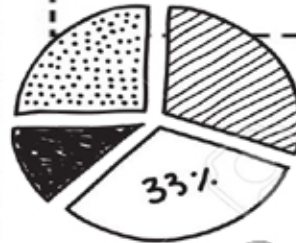

Skills You Will Develop

The skills that you will develop in business are always very transferable and valued in a wide range of careers. Whether you decide to set up your own business, study business at university or go down a different route you will find things you learn in this course will help. Skills such as problem solving, numeracy, decision making and evaluation are all integral parts of the course. You will also develop an interest for current business news which will help you understand how the theory works in the real world.

Entry Requirements

You do not need to have studied GCSE Business however it would be helpful. You must have a minimum of a 4 in Maths and a 5 in English Literature or Language to get on to the course. Obviously a passion and interest in the subject are just as important!
